When you explore the Buffalo AKG's Shop on a visit to the museum, you will find t-shirts with the following message: "Contemporary Since 1862." This statement refers to the extraordinary history of the museum's mission of collecting and exhibiting the art of today and to the ways in which the meaning of "contemporary" has changed since the nineteenth century. What is contemporary today is, by definition, no longer contemporary ten years from now. Through its consistent engagement with the present moment and a constant eye toward the future, the Buffalo AKG is effectively a museum dedicated to the changing nature of the modern world and of artistic creativity over time. Together with you, we navigate, explore, and celebrate the opportunities and challenges of our shifting world.

This past year has been one of change for the Buffalo AKG. Reopening our doors in June 2023 after more than three years of construction was just the first step. Living our mission as a new museum requires a patient approach to the long process of becoming the Buffalo AKG Art Museum. The success of the past year was accompanied by an equal number of learning opportunities. Along the way, through teamwork and with the support of a much larger community, we found our new normal—which we learned is not linear or "one size fits all."

Many people visit the Buffalo AKG to see and learn about art. Many others look to the museum for solace, social interaction, delicious food, or opportunities to be creative. Sometimes visitors walk through our doors simply to be, to exist in a beautiful space without feeling compelled to do anything at all. From the Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Town Square, to the Sculpture Terrace of the new Jeffrey E. Gundlach Building, to the Great Lawn, to the John. J. Albright Bridge, the Buffalo AKG's campus was designed to facilitate all these experiences and many more. So many of our aspirations for a new campus, articulated through the hopes you shared with us in community meetings along the way, are now a reality. We thank you for your care for your community, for your trust in us, and for your commitment to the Buffalo AKG.

We are proud to share that in the past year we welcomed 325,000 visitors—a figure that more than doubled our projections and shattered an attendance record for the museum that had stood for more than fifty years. Our membership community grew from an average of 6,000 member households to more than 14,000 households. We presented eight new exhibitions, including Clyfford Still: A Legacy for Buffalo, which featured all thirty-three of Still's extraordinary abstractions in the Buffalo AKG's collection; Looking Back: Lucas Samaras's Mirrored Room, a celebration of one of the museum's most beloved artworks and the experiences visitors have had with the work for nearly sixty years; Stanley Whitney: How High the Moon, the first career retrospective of one of the world's most accomplished abstract painters; Before and After Again, an exhibition commemorating the lives lost in the racist mass shooting that profoundly impacted our community on May 14, 2022; and After the Sun—Forecasts from the North, the inaugural exhibition of the Buffalo AKG Nordic Art and Culture Initiative, a survey of art responding to the global climate crisis. In addition to this diverse array of exhibitions, a chronological installation of works in the museum's collection is presented throughout the entirety of the Robert and Elisabeth Wilmers Building and the second-floor galleries of the Gundlach Building. For the first time, the Buffalo AKG is able to present the fullness of its collection alongside groundbreaking special exhibitions by artists who dive headfirst into the winds of change with courage and thoughtfulness.

The Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Town Square is a bustling hub of activity—at any given time, school groups, families, community organizations, couples, and individuals from across Western New York can be found underneath Common Sky, 2022.

An abundance of new public programming draws new visitors and old friends to the space every week. One of the most popular new events is our free Thursday Night Live concert series, which features everything from jazz to rock to salsa music played by an array of exceptional musicians. In the past fiscal year, the Learning & Creativity Department, whose engaging classes and programs are centralized in the Seymour H. Knox Building, welcomed nearly 25,000 schoolchildren to experience all that the Buffalo AKG has to offer.

While we have learned much in our inaugural year of operations, many questions lie before us. How will the Buffalo AKG adapt to a constantly changing world? How do we balance and meet the expectations of a larger community of visitors? We are poised to explore these issues in our next Strategic Plan, which will guide the museum into the future. As we begin an important period of self-reflection, holistic review, and planning, we will be grateful for your continued guidance and feedback.

To most of us, the year 1862 does not feel very contemporary. But put yourself in the shoes of a visitor to one of the Buffalo Fine Arts Academy's first exhibitions. The paintings those visitors saw were radically different from those to which they were accustomed. A faster, more modern world was being born and its new realities were being captured by artists, just as they are now. The Buffalo AKG is committed to celebrating the innovative artists who expand our horizons and teach us to see the future in new and ever-evolving ways.

the Arts

The Buffalo AKG Art Museum's annual operations are supported, in part, by public funds from the County of Erie and the New York State Council on the Arts with the support of the Office of the Governor and the New York State Legislature; by the Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Arts & Culture Initiative at the Community Foundation for Greater Buffalo; and by the generosity of our members.
